

Want to become a children's hero? Come on board!

We are looking for the following professionals to contribute in a voluntary capacity to our Internet platform HopeLit.de

Illustrators

(to illustrate children's books, texts and poems)

Authors

(to write texts)

Psychologists/psychotherapists/psychiatrists

(for quality control)

Scientists

(to write and possibly revise factual texts)

Graphic designers

(for the layout)

Editors

(for editing and proofreading)

Translators

(for translating from or into German)

Sponsors

(for all the things we can't afford to do in a voluntary capacity)

Why?

The world is standing still and everyone is confused. We aim to use our skills to provide rapid and straightforward assistance to children and their parents in a voluntary capacity within the bounds of our possibilities.

How?

We develop content for children to help them understand the present crisis better. We start with factual texts in which we explain the coronavirus or invent stories around it, providing helpful links for parents and children at the same time.

Who?

We are a group of female creative artists from the book trade (authors, web designers, editors, graphic designers, etc.) who are involved with the publishing houses MONTEROSA and Psychiatrie Verlag, with its imprint BALANCE buch + medien verlag, and have joined forces for this initiative.

If you would like to support us, come and join our team!

We would be delighted to have you on board.
